Benidorm, known as the "Spanish Manhattan", is a mysterious and unique place. Its attractiveness is due to its microclimate, its south orientation and the protection of the mountains, which guarantee mild winters and pleasant summers. The favourable situation in front of a bay with two golden beaches and crystal clear waters, as well as the variety of services, leisure, golf courses, yacht clubs, restaurants and much more make Benidorm a great city for a comfortable and fun life. The Rincón de Loix Sierra Helada neighbourhood offers a new perspective of Benidorm, moving away from the tourist hustle and bustle and offering a more residential, peaceful and architecturally unique environment. Surrounded by a lush Mediterranean forest, this neighbourhood has a special microclimate that mitigates the hot summers compared to other areas of the city. It also enjoys a privileged location, less than 10 minutes from the Levante beach and the city centre.
